Yukon Utilities Board, and
Lesley McCullough, Chair

Thank you for your March 5, 2025 reply to my letters of December 23 and email follow-up on March 4th.

I also appreciate the acknowledgment that you have received the unredacted document that I sent on August 29, 2024 in conjunction with my cost claim comment, and again on December 23, and again on March 4, 2025.

It should be noted that in my cost claim submitted on August 29, 2024, I mention that I will be sending the unredacted version in a separate email. The unredacted version is part of my cost claim comment, provided in a separate email 20 minutes later, and well within the time limit required for submission.

From the middle of the third page of my cost claim comment available on the YUB website:

“The full collection of relevant unredacted pages will be provided to the Board in a separate email and provided to the full list at the discretion of the Board.”

The unredacted pages are part of my cost claim comment, submitted in a separate email just after the comment itself, to allow the Board to provide direction on the distribution of the document. There was no option for the Board to reject and delete part of my cost claim comment, just as the Board cannot delete supporting documents provided by the Utilities.

In reviewing my cost claim comment, the Board is aware that the unredacted pages exist and have been submitted as part of my cost claim comment, and that Yukon Energy has potentially submitted a false document to the Board.

The Board reviews the cost claims as provided by the parties, but the Board has not provided any rationale as to why the supporting document submitted with my cost claim comment has been deleted and not reviewed. I have not asked that the unredacted document be reviewed instead of YEC's submission, but in relation to it.

I have also not asked to add anything to my cost claim document and attachment that was submitted in August. Why has part of my cost claim comment been rejected? And how would the Board know to reject it without reviewing it?

Thanks,
-Nathaniel
